Chairman Hubbell Invited to Test the Assessment Question in Courts.

DISASTROUS RAILROAD ACCIDENT IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA

Trouble with Crow Indians A Helpful M[illegible] Michael Davitt Lectures in Hartford Progress of the Strike at Jersey City

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

NEW YORK June 26 —Geo Wm Curtis has handed counsel of the Civil Service Reform association a letter written to him by J A Hubbell concerning the political assessment circular. Curtis in reply to Hubbell says: "It would give the association and ourselves much satisfaction to have an immediate opportunity of testing the soundness of the circular to which you refer. The circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York is now in session and we will make a test case of any one which you may select of the numerous payments which have been as we are informed made to you in this district in response to your circular by executive officers or employes of the United States appointed by the president by and with advice and consent of senate. We will, if you concur in this suggestion and in case request the attorney of the United States to proceed at once by information against the offender. We will request you to state in this information the facts exactly as they exist so that counsel for defendant may demur to information at once. With his concurrence, which we believe would be cheerfully given if you concur through your counsel in facilitating proceedings, we doubt not court will fix an early day for a hearing and thus this important question be judicially determined

Fatal Railroad Accident.

ST PAUL, June 26 —An accident is reported on the Manitoba line near Atwater Minn of a most serious character. A work train consisting of an engine, caboose and twenty two ordinary flat cars such as are used for hauling gravel, running [illegible] mile an hour more than is allowed working trains, was backing to a gravel pit at Atwater for a new load. Without any visible cause the engine and tender caboose and five flat cars jumped the track and turning on an embankment twelve feet high tumbled into a ten foot pool of water. When an indescribable scene of confusion ensued. The following are the casualties so far as is known although great difficulty is experienced in securing the names of the workmen, being Swedes and Norwegians. Killed: Geo. Flood, engineer; J O Dall; W J Johnson; S Thompson; Torsen Berkiand; Christianson Stale and John Holland. Injured: James Wilson, C L Sandberg, right side bruised; H Stenson, badly bruised in back; Peter Ritemuson, right arm broken and internal injuries; fireman name unknown, both arms broken and amputated. The company is sending out a relief train and taking the wounded to Willmar and giving them every attention. It is believed there are others under the cars in the pool. Workmen are at the wreck searching for bodies. Appearances indicate that the engine was ditched by reason of a broken tender axle, though a high rate of speed was maintained. All the train men except the engineer escaped.

A Pair of Murderous Items

DENVER, June 26 — Tribune's Leadville: Thomas O'Connor, a well known veterinary surgeon, was shot and killed this afternoon by Officer Townsend. O'Connor resisted arrest and fired once at the officer.

Tribune's Raton, N M: This afternoon Deputy Sheriff Dolman attempted to arrest a gambler named Gus Wenzel. Wenzel fired two shots at Dolman, slightly wounding him and also Charles Fox and Jacob Harris, who were standing near them. Shortly afterwards Dolman made a second attempt to arrest Wenzel at his gambling house. Wenzel again opened fire on the deputy which resulted in the death of Harry Moulton, justice of the peace, and Hugh E. Delstan, one of the proprietors of the Moulton hotel, and D H Jackson, a saloon keeper. All three were instantly killed. He also seriously wounded H. Lattimer and Deputy Sheriff Bongen. Immediately after the killing Wenzel was seized by the enraged citizens and hanged to a sign of the Raton bank.

Later—Deputy Sheriff Bongen is dying and citizens are wild with excitement. It is thought that a raid will be made upon gamblers to-night

Reception of Barnes.

NEW YORK, June 25 —A reception has been tendered to W. H. Barnes, past grand master of the Odd Fellows of the State of New York, and now a resident of San Francisco, by Odd Fellows of Brooklyn, at the institute on Washington street. There was present quite a large number of ladies and gentlemen who warmly greeted Barnes. When conducted to the platform he delivered a short address in which he referred to some of his experiences on the Pacific slope, and expressed his thanks for the cordial reception which had been tendered him in Brooklyn. Music was furnished by the [illegible] quartette, refreshments were served, and the remainder of the evening was devoted to songs and social recreation. Barnes left for San Francisco yesterday.

Trouble Imminent with the Crows.

CHEYENNE, June 26 —A Leader special from Fort McKinney, Wyoming, says: From reliable sources it is shown that there are about 3000 Crow Indians between Tongue and Powder rivers. They are very insolent and are killing cattle. Trouble is apprehended at any moment.

Davitt Lectures at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn , June 26.—Michael Davitt lectured last evening under the auspices of the woman's land league society. Davitt set right the rumors of differences between Parnell and himself, and explained his attitude on the Irish question.

Anti-Railroad Resolutions.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The board of trade passed resolutions declaring the advance asked by freight handlers should be granted, and protesting against such sweeping advance on west bound freight rates as was lately announced by trunk lines.

Criminal Notes.

LAREDO, Texas, June 26.—A desperate encounter between Brown, murderer of Deputy Sheriff Johnson and rangers occurred yesterday at Cibolo. Brown was killed and two rangers wounded.

An Aristocratic "Mill."

BOSTON, June 26.—Two young gentlemen, well known on Beacon hill, fought four rounds with hard gloves in a private room to-day. The contest lasted 20 minutes, and was interrupted by a false cry of police.

THE TURF.

Races at Chicago.

CHICAGO June 26 —Second race, ladies' stake, two year old fillies, ¾ mile. Betting even against Woodford. They got away well and Miss Woodford won in a gallop, Vis-a-Vis 2d, Blue Grass Belle 3d, Gr[illegible] Blossom 4th. Olean last, time 1.20¼.

Third race, board of trade handicap, sweepstakes for all ages, 1¼ miles, Bend Or and John Davis nearly even in pools. There was an excellent start. Sunday and Babee running even, but John Davis and Blaze headed them. Bend Or taking 2d place. Before he reached the seven furlong post Bend Or had them all whipped and won by half a length, John Davis 2d, Almudo 3d two lengths off, and Blazes, Sunday, Monogram, Babee and Intrinsic following, time 2.10¾.

Fourth race, mile heats, over four hurdles. At first hurdle Bismuth who had been behaving badly turned a complete somersault. Guy and Glasgow ran it evens, taking the last hurdle together but Glasgow was squeezed out, Guy winning, Judge Burnett 2d, Glasgow 3d, time 2 58¾. Second heat, Glasgow sold $100 and field $110. The three went away finely until Glasgow's rider fell at second hurdle, and after a driving race Burnett won by a nose, time 1.53¼.

CHICAGO, June 26,—Weather fine and warm and track heavy from yesterday's rain.

First race, one mile, all ages—Bootjack was $100 in pools. The field $40. There was a fine send off. Bootjack won by a length, Gus Matthews 2d, Clarissa 3d, Eagle 4th, Goodnight last, beaten off by a bad start for her, time, 1.50.

Fifth race, third heat—Poole Burnett $10; Guy $25. Guy took the lead and won the race by a length, time 1.58¾. Book betting was 3½ to 1 against Guy to win, for place, 1 to 2 against Guy.

Fifth race, 1¼ mile, all ages—Non winners since January 1st. Bell Boy took the track at first followed closely by Mary Corbett and Wapsekonets, others bunched. At the home stretch Stanton came away and won by a length and a half. Mary Corbett 2d, Bell Boy 3d, Saunterer 4th. Time 2 minutes. This ended the day's sport.

Salt Lake Races.

SALT LAKE, June 26 —To-day was the second day of the Utah jockey club races. First race—One mile, running, Dhandilia 1, Euchre 2, Anderson 3.

Second race—Two year olds, ¾ mile running, P. Lorillard 1, Miss Frump 2.

Third race—1¼ mile running. Red Boy 1, Belle of the West 2.

Fourth race—Trotting mile heats won by Ewing in 2.35, 2 41½ and 2.3[illegible].

STRIKES.

No Change in the Situation

JERSEY CITY, June 26 —The strike of longshoremen and freight handlers is unchanged. The strikers are well behaved. Switchmen and brakemen engaged in the Jersey City yards of the Lake Erie and Pennsylvania Central R R of N J D [illegible] and Western companies to-day organized a protective commission and appointed a committee to wait upon men employed by trunk lines. Resolutions were adopted calling upon men to consider themselves bound as good citizens to maintain order and prevent the least outbreak of lawlessness. Night watchmen and brakemen of the Central R R of N J in Jersey City yards joined the strike last night. Abolition of all Sunday work is spoken of as the right thing to be demanded by the men.

Why They Go to "Classical Concerts."

Who is this tired looking man

He is a worthy man who goes to classical concerts

Doesn't he like it?

He positively hates them [illegible] all [illegible] since.

Why does he go?

Because his wife and daughters [illegible] to escort them home

Well, but why [illegible]?

Because its fashionable to do so

Do they like it?

No, but they don't dare [illegible]

Why not?

Because people would laugh at them

How unhappy they must be!

They are, but they are bound to keep up with the fashion

Prejudice Kills.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery, under the care of several of the best (and some of the worst) physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief and now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had poohed at for two years before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—The parents.—Telegram

Another Iowa Town Wrecked

SIOUX CITY, June [illegible] —[illegible] Primghar is [illegible] south east of Sanborn and the county seat of O'Brien county. It has about 150 people. [illegible] A farmer came to Spencer a short twenty miles east of Sanborn with a report that in his neighborhood six were killed and forty injured. It is believed at Spencer that forty dwellings had been blown down in that county (Clay). The scanty reports [illegible] train dispatcher [illegible] but the wires along that road being down early in the day were then working badly and monopolized by railroad business

Clean up of the Storm

OMAHA, June [illegible] —[illegible] a storm of wind rain [illegible] destroyed a large amount of crops along the Omaha and Republican Valley Railroad. The damage [illegible] Butler county is estimated [illegible] and there suffered severely. All wind was on the west side of houses in the path of the storm which varied from five to fifteen miles in width were broken. Numerous houses were wrecked and several persons killed and injured. A girl and a boy were killed near Brainerd and their mother and father badly injured. A woman had a leg broken at Rising. A child was drowned at Weston and a woman was severely injured and two children killed in Butler county

An Authentic Report.

ST PAUL, June 25 —A special from Spencer Iowa to the Pioneer Press, received late last night says: A cyclone passed through this vicinity last night. It struck this town and did much damage, unroofing buildings, tearing up sidewalks and blowing down residences, barns and buildings. In the southern part of Clay county it blew down twenty houses, killed five people and injured about twenty five. At Emmetsburg it blew down four residences, took the front out of four business blocks, made a total wreck out of Shanner's plow works and injured four persons, two seriously. Owing to confusion and wreck of wires, it is impossible to give names or losses to night. This is authentic Winds in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, June 26 —Heavy rains and a terrible storm last Saturday, just reported, have caused much damage to crops in the valleys of the Mississippi and Wisconsin rivers in the vicinity of Prairie Du Chien. Specials say that farms in the valleys are covered with a coating of clay washed down from the hills to a depth of one to three feet. Side hill farm crops are completely ruined

Storm at Omaha

OMAHA, June 25 —A rain wind and hail storm, the severest known here for years, occurred this morning, blowing down trees, chimneys, fences and unroofing houses. The water fall was the heaviest ever known. Rivers ran through the streets doing much damage and occupants of a number of small houses were driven out. Hail did much damage

Storm at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 26 —A severe wind storm last evening blew down the steeple of the Episcopal cathedral and did considerable damage to other buildings. A negro boy was badly hurt by a falling house

Severe Storm at Trenton

TRENTON, N J, June 26 —This city was visited last evening by a terrific wind, hail and thunder storm. The Globe Rubber Co's building, Titus woolen mill and a number of dwellings were unroofed.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON June 26

Allison, from the appropriations committee reported back the legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill with amendments, and gave notice that he would move its consideration to-morrow. It provides aggregate appropriations of $20,200,000, an increase of $27,000 over the amount of the bill as it passed the house. Ordered printed.

After a long discussion the Senate took up the resolution instructing the committee on civil service and retrenchment to inquire whether any attempt is being made to levy or collect assessments for political purposes by parties from government employees in Washington, whether same be under the guise of asking contributions or otherwise.

Mr Pendleton addressed the Senate

After executive session adjourned

House.

After passage of some District of Columbia bills house went into the committee of the whole, Camp of New York in the chair on the bill to reduce internal revenue tax. A large number of amendments were offered and rejected.

Cox offered an amendment providing that no political assessments shall be imposed on any person who shall be engaged in the execution of internal revenue laws. He then made a speech in denunciation of the recent circular distributed by the republican congressional committee.

This was followed by a long series of political cats and thrusts after which committee rose and previous question was ordered on the bill and amendments thus insuring their coming up to morrow as unfinished business. Matter then went over and house adjourned

THE TARIFF COMMISSION.

From the Astorian

The most objectionable work of the present congress is the passage of the tariff commission bill, and one of the worst acts of the administration is the manner in which the positions on the commission has been filled. There is nothing partisan about the action of congress, for each party is divided on this question. The democrats will make political capital by showing that the republicans being in power could have legislated differently had they been so disposed. The revenues of the federal treasury are one hundred and fifty million dollars in excess of the annual requirements and the schemes to absorb the surplus are developing the most gross corruption. The people are over taxed, and relief is due them now but they will not receive it. The whisky tax cannot be reduced because the whisky lobby is too powerful to allow that until present stocks have been worked off which can not be for several years. All internal revenue taxes cannot be abolished because that would necessitate the dispersal of many thousands of active politicians and wire pullers who are drawing salaries from the government and looking after the political interests of the managers who keep them in office. The tariff cannot be touched because it would prevent various favored capitalists from making a profit ranging all the way from thirty to seventy seven per cent per annum on their investments. Because of these strong but diverse interests there seems to have been a compromise for the purpose of securing delay.

The president might to some extent have neutralized the effect of this scheme by appointing the right sort of men as commissioners but he has done nothing of the sort. Most of them are special advocates of protection in the industries they represent who will naturally keep the tariff as high as they can. There is a sensible effort at geographical distribution in the appointments but the Pacific coast is entirely ignored. The protective tariff is not designed to protect anything so far away from the existing seat of political power as the other side of the continent. We do not know what any line of business here is so weak that it cannot exist without protection, but if the profits of capitalists in the east are to be enhanced by legislation so should the profits of Pacific coast operators be increased. There might have been chosen a commission of men who were advocates of any theory or interested in any one industry [illegible] at the rights of consumers as well as those of manufacturers and considering the welfare of the people as a whole who [illegible] would carry [illegible] but there is nothing of the kind.

[illegible]

Retirements in the Army

WASHINGTON, June [illegible] —The army appropriation bill [illegible] the clause providing for retirement of army officers at the age of 64 has been finally agreed to in the conference committee and will be passed by both houses this week. War department officials are preparing to execute [illegible] Officers to retire [illegible] at the department last Friday. Several retirements were agreed upon. It was thought by many persons that Col F T Dent of the 2d artillery, Gen Grant's relative, would be among the first retired at this time but he has dodged the question for the present. The board recommended the retirement of Maj McMillan of the 2d artillery and placed on the retired list Lt Col J S Williamson of the corps of engineers. So being found to be incapacitated by disabilities from active service. Orders are to be issued at once retiring Maj McMillan of the 2d artillery, Capt J H Rollins of the [illegible] department and Maj Napoleon B McLaughlin of the 10th cavalry. The last named officer retires upon his own application he having served 30 years. It is understood that as far as possible retirements for the present will be made from the line although there are several surgeons, paymasters and chaplains who have made application to be retired.

No More Chinese Wanted

WASHINGTON, June 25 —Sections 1 and 2 of the act prohibiting Chinese immigration absolutely prohibits under severe penalties the coming of Chinese laborers to the United States. There are about 10,000 Chinese in Cuba and Mexico, and representatives of the Chinese government have asked permission of the president that these laborers shall be allowed to return to China through the territory of the United States. It is believed there is a scheme afloat to drop the major portion of the Chinamen in the states. The subject was brought to the attention of the cabinet yesterday, and Secretary Folger gave an opinion that under terms of the law they could not be granted permission. If Chinese under the contract in Cuba wish to return home, they must make the journey across the isthmus and sail direct from ports outside this country. Secretary Folger says the terms of the law will be complied with in the strictest details

Guiteau Growing Gaunt

General Crocker, warden of the district jail, says the stories of Guiteau breaking up so well during the last week are untrue. He has lost five pounds within the last 10 days and has to be tempted to eat. He keeps up very well before the few visitors admitted to see him, but guards at the jail see a marked change in him. Gen Crocker however thinks he may keep up pretty well and if his vanity is properly played upon will go through his part on Friday without breaking

WASHINGTON, June 26 —Guiteau's death warrant was signed by Clerk Meigs of the criminal court this morning, the seal of court attached and the document forwarded to Warden Crocker at the district jail

PALACES ON WHEELS.

Costly Special Cars for Railroad Magnates.

Gath in Cincinnati Enquirer

Three cars have just been built by the Pullman Palace Car Company which are palaces on wheels. One was constructed for Hugh J Jewett, the president of the Erie railroad, another for Henry Villard, the president of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company, and the third for T W Pearce, the president of the Sunset route in Texas. These three cars form houses in miniature. At the forward end of each car is a kitchen; back of this is a parlor which serves as a diningroom; adjoining this is a bedroom with bathroom attached, and at the rear end a smoking room and observatory. Berths are also supplied in different parts of the cars, and electric bells connect with the kitchen and servants quarters. The cars are handsome in the extreme. That of Mr Jewett, the Ramapo, is heavily inlaid with costly woods and magnificently upholstered. These cars cost about $25,000 each. The car of William H Vanderbilt is one of the largest in the country. It is 74 feet in length, nine feet ten inches wide and fourteen feet six high. It is divided into fourteen main apartments. At the front is the kitchen and back of it is Mr Vanderbilt's stateroom. The sitting and diningroom and the [illegible] follow. At the extreme rear is the observatory with inclosed sides and open back. The car is elegantly fitted up, and is provided with electric bells and other conveniences.

Others besides railroad officials ride in special cars. The Pullman Palace Car company has besides its coaches on regular service, one car especially intended for the use of families or private parties. This car is a house on wheels, and is similar in construction to the Ramapo. It has accommodations for ten persons. The main saloon is furnished like a parlor and is supplied with an organ. The Pullman company charges $65 a day for the use of the car which includes the services of a conductor, a cook and two waiters. Besides this the person hiring the car—or in fact any car—must buy eighteen full tickets of the railroad line over which the car passes for hauling it. The car is usually attached to a regular train and if a special engine is hired, which is rarely the case the expense is greatly increased. Provisions and liquors are supplied by the Pullman company at cost or the party to whom the car is let may stock it himself. [illegible] are let at the rate of $[illegible] a day including a conductor and porter [illegible] cars at $75 including a conductor, cook and two waiters. The Pullman company also has two hunting and fishing cars. One is named the Davy Crockett and the other the Izaak Walton. The charge for these cars is $[illegible] a day which include a cook and waiter for each. The cars are provided with kennels for dogs.

Chicago's Peril

The Cleveland Leader under the heading of "Chicago's Peril" has the following timely article:

The great and progressive city of Chicago is contemplating a serious step backward. After enduring for many years a building ordinance which effectually prevented the erection of frame buildings and guaranteed a fair measure of safety from extensive fires it is now proposed by reckless demagogues to so amend the law as to permit the construction of wooden houses and practically leave the city without protection from the growth of an immense shanty town on its outskirts. The measure would of course be a capital issue to the poorer people of Chicago provided that they are a thick enough to endanger the safety of the city for a small personal advantage, and it is advocated by unscrupulous politicians who care for nothing but votes and rather enjoy striking at the better class of society. It is almost needless to say that Mayor Harrison regards it with favor. On the other hand the proposed amendment of the ordinance is vigorously opposed by the [illegible] best able to promote its growth and prosperity. PUGET SOUND.

Considered Abstractly as a Fine Body of Water—Its Discovery and its Original People.

FACT AND FICTION HISTORY AND ROMANCE

Lieutenant Puget and the Saviour of Mankind

[illegible]

I spent fully two days in the [illegible] [illegible] was [illegible] with [illegible] in his journal [illegible] are still [illegible] the circumstance. Mr Oxer was [illegible] came very near giving up the hunt in despair [illegible] the station of Vancouver's dashing lieutenant Puget who had the honor to make the first survey of this magnificent body of water and was rewarded as a [illegible] with a short and lasting immortality. Great honor was never purchased so cheaply and Puget is an example of the inexplicable freaks of fortune. His old camping ground is pointed out to strangers from the deck of the passing steamers and it needs no explanation that it is not marked with some device which would attract attention. The work he did [illegible] when he made the survey will last for all time and perhaps the day is coming when it will be discovered that his bones, which are now moldering in some English churchyard, should be laid at the entrance of the waters which he was the first to explore and that the great mountains which he marked and so named in the world's system of topography should be the sentinels that stand guard over his grave

DESCRIPTION

The Sound is a winding torturous body of water of irregular width and having an extreme length of [illegible] miles. It was first entered by Vancouver in 1792, although Kendrick the American who in 1789 sailed up and down Chariot strait must have known of its existence and perhaps approached it. It covers an area of 12,000 square miles and it was considered by the first white navigators to be the mouth of the long sought for river which connected the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans. The fabulous De Fuca, who sailed many days inland, thought that he had actually entered that river and in fact the term "river" much more properly describes the Sound than any other word. It is in truth a broad Danube hemmed in by green sloping banks, dotted with islands and receiving from either side the waters of a half dozen tributary arms which in turn receive smaller streams. It has its iron gate at Steilacoom and its crags and fastnesses everywhere. The mountains crowd so close on its waters that there is no room for great valleys and rolling plains, but the ships which come to its wharves need not go away empty as the hills are full of iron and coal and the slopes are covered with cedar and fir. Though Vancouver and Puget may have been disappointed when they found that none of the far reaching arms of the Sound clasped hands with the Atlantic, still when they contemplated the grandeur of the surroundings, the magnificence of the harbor and the varied resources of the country they must have felt that they had discovered a new El Dorado for the human race and although they sailed away without finding the much sought for passage to the Indies through the American continent still they did the world a service equal to it when they announced the discovery of the Sound

TRADITIONS

Fish and game being plentiful the original inhabitants of this region were of course likely to be numerous and powerful. The tribes that occupied the immediate neighborhood of the sound were rather stupid and lazy but not so those who dwelt along the Skagit and other turbulent streams. These people were warlike and produced some fine specimens of Indian humanity. The Makah tribe especially, which dwelt farther down by Cape Flattery, are said to have been physically and mentally the finest race of Indians known and perhaps their dangerous life—chasing the seal for a living—may account for this. The Sound Indians were very superstitious and they have some traditions which are worthy to be reproduced here. Perhaps the biblical smack of these legends may be due to the zeal of the pious Jesuits, who were on the lower Saskatchewan as early as 1780 and were in northern California in 1680 and who could easily spread a religious story to these shores from those points. But be that as it may the fact remains that the Indians have some striking traditions and I will give a few of them as they were recounted to me. The most curious is that concerning the deluge and the preservation of the human race. It goes on to say that for a long period the earth was visited by rain and finally all the hollows were covered and all living things were destroyed save one person alone who escaped to the highest point of Mt Rainier. When there he stood waist deep in water and was about to be swept into the flood when his lower parts were changed into stone and he became rooted to the ground. When the waters subsided the Great Spirit cast him into a deep sleep and took a rib from his body and created a woman and from them sprang the human race. Another relates to the

SAVIOUR OF MANKIND

Who sailed down the Sound towards the ocean in a canoe of copper and who called all the tribes to the beach and taught them the doctrine of the resurrection of the body and the immortality of the soul. These doctrines were not acceptable to some warlike tribes in the interior and they waylaid the Saviour near the mouth of the Stellaguamish and impaled him on a tree. After his death he reappeared to numerous tribes and in this way proved his theory to be true. These two stories are very religious and and some suspect that the fathers of the Saskatchewan missions imposed them on the tribes and this could be easily done as communication between the Fraser people and the Saskatchewan folks was as frequent as that between the Sound and the Fraser river tribes and moreover the same traditions are found in these two regions. The Sound Indians have also the story of the stealing of fire from heaven just as the ancient Greeks had with this difference that a coyote did the job for them instead of a Prometheus. They claim that at one time the waters of the Sound reached to California and the present bends were the result of an upheaval of the earth's crust. The coming of the salmon is likewise wrapped in tradition. There is a splendid field here for the antiquarian and the lover of traditional history

ENGRAVING AND TATTOOING

The Puget Sound Indian was not an architect or a sculptor by any means. No remains can be found of his handiwork in this direction. He did not even strain his [illegible] faces on the rocks as the Columbia Indian did and he neither dug caves nor built mounds. The Olympic mounds it is true have been the source of considerable speculation to the learned mossbacks but as it was agreed by the engineers and scientific men years ago that these mounds were never the result of ocean currents and whirlpools meeting when that prairie was under water they might as well be dismissed. Though not a builder the Sound Indian was a cunning engraver and some of his handiwork in this respect now possessed by collectors is equal in finish and design to that of our most intelligent goldsmiths. Silver bracelets, armlets and badges have been shown me which are chastely and elegantly finished and which contain evidence of great taste in the workman. It was a fact once however that the Sound Indian was a success. Instead of a family badge or device each household had its own sign artistically and deftly printed on the arm and breast and some of them are most fearfully and wonderfully made. I saw a dirty old chief at Tacoma who had a seal, a salmon, a girl, a cross and a canoe on his arm and breast and he claimed these symbols had been in his family for a thousand years

A SAIL AHOY

It is all well enough to study and read and post yourself on the history and resources of Puget Sound—to know just when the first white man entered it and when the first saw mill was erected and how many million feet of lumber is cut along its shores in a year but this is very poor satisfaction compared to the pleasures of a sail down its winding channels these hot days. Taking the boat at Olympia and running past the narrows or gate of the Sound at Steilacoom thence to Elliott's bay and under Mt Rainier and then on to Seattle and round Point no Point until Mt Baker comes in sight is a ride which for grandeur [illegible] cannot be equaled. [illegible] of sea breeze is always blowing, and [illegible] are not known. Everything tending to the comfort of the traveler is supplied and as charges are as reasonable there is no excuse why pleasure seekers should not come this way. Fine steamers, grand scenery, pleasant people, cool winds, great mountains and romantic traditions will certainly make the Sound trip the most popular summer journey that can be taken. Try it and see for yourself B

THE GREAT GAME OF "DRAW."

Particulars of the $150,000 Play at Newburgh, New York.

NEW YORK, June 14 —A special to the Times from Newburgh, N Y, of June 11th thus describes the great poker game in which Dr Montreville M Hedges and William M Scott are accused of having swindled Francis P Weed out of $150,000 by means of stocked cards. This remarkable game, according to the papers in the case was played one evening last June in Dr Hedges' dental rooms on the corner of Water and Second streets, in this city. When the party was seated Dr Hedges secured the deal and delivered five cards to each player. The doctor dealt himself a full hand. Scott obtained a four flush and Weed received three aces. Scott called four cards and secured a straight flush. Weed took two cards, one of which was an ace making his hand four aces. Dr. Hedges hand was what is known as a "pat" and he played it without drawing. Weed's first bet on his four aces was the said $1000 which his opponents both saw and raised him $1000 each. The play continued with raises of $1000 until the betting on each hand had reached $10,000 or $15,000, when Weed hesitated and said "Look here, boys how are you going to pay this thing if I get it?" Scott and Hedges satisfied him of their ability to make good any losses they might sustain and the play continued till the sum of $150,000 was pending on each hand, the pot having swelled to the immense amount of $450,000.

SCOTT RAKES IN THE POT

A call was then made and Scott with his straight flush raked the table, Weed and Hedges being the losers. Whether Hedges made any apparent settlement or not has not yet appeared but Weed it is said compromised his debt of honor in a few days after for $120,000. He paid Scott $21,000 in cash and gave him two notes for $50,000 each with interest, one due in six and the other in nine months. Scott was going to California and he placed the notes in the hands of J B Staick, cashier of the Stissing National bank of Pine Plains, Dutchess county, who agreed to collect them for 10 per cent of their face. When the first note became due Mr Weed it is said took it up by the payment of $51,300 the $1500 being for interest and when the second matured he paid $35,000 on it and gave a renewal for the balance with interest. Of the $85,000 thus paid the cashier who made the collection retained his 10 per cent $8500 for his services.

THE SECRET OUT

The story of the poker game had up to this time been kept a profound secret by all concerned but at the last payment Hugh Moore an intimate friend of Weed's became in some unexplained way cognizant of the facts. As a friend and confidant he advised Mr Weed to appeal to the courts to recover his money if possible and in his advice was followed. The victim of this extraordinary game of poker now claims that Hedges and Scott conspired to fleece him and that they [illegible] the cards, giving him a hand which would bet largely but so arranging it that one of them would have the winning hand. He claims that the supposed loss of $150,000 by Dr Hedges was all a sham and that he shared with Scott the money extorted from him. On the strength of Judge Gilbert's writ of attachment Hedges house at 44 North street in this city was attached by the sheriff who also attempted to attach his jewels and other property in the Quassaick National Bank belonging to the doctor, and went to the bank early morning for that purpose but Mrs Hedges was there before him and it is thought succeeded in removing most of the securities [illegible] about $3,500 [illegible]

THE TARIFF ON WOOL.

Springfield [illegible] Republican

Although the tariff commission bill has become a law, it will still [illegible] debate. It is the [illegible] secures [illegible] and from [illegible] will be the great issue [illegible] every branch of the subject. The great field for discussion will be this. What is the operation of the present tariff to help or to hinder the development and prosperity of the country and what changes are advisable?

Although the recent tariff debate in congress was directed in a great measure to the question of the [illegible] of the commission assuming the need [illegible] a few speeches like that of Mr Hewitt which we have already spoken of attacked the fundamental question of the wisdom of the present tariff. One of the ablest and most searching of the speeches we have found in the Congressional Record was that of Congressman Wm M Springer of Illinois. Mr Springer proposed to provide for the representation of certain industries on the commission in the proportion in which the industrial population of the country is divided and in support of this presented the following table of estimates fresh from the census office of the actual division of the labor of the country in 1880 as compared with 1870. The estimate is arrived at by assuming that the increase of population is divided pro rata among the different departments

Occupations	1870	1880
Agriculture	5 922,471	7 670 493
Professional services	1,684,793	3 400 330
Trade and transportation	1 191 238	1 543 1[illegible]
Manufactures, mechanical and industries and mining	2 707 421	3 510,64[illegible]
	12 505 923	16 207 6[illegible]

Thus nearly one half the labor of the country is engaged in agricultural pursuits. Although it was scarcely wise to hamper the personnel of the commission in the manner asked for by Mr Springer and the house refused to do so the bearing of this statement is important as showing the importance of the agricultural standpoint as a point from which to regard the tariff.

Mr. Springer made a strong attack upon the tariff on wool which is regarded by the protectionists as the key stone of the whole protective system. Until the duties upon woolens were matched by the duties on wool by the tariff of 1867 in the supposed interest of the wool growers it was always difficult to hold the agricultural interest to the unqualified support of the tariff. Duties were laid upon wool of the various grades ranging from 45 to 116 per cent ad valorem with the expectation that the American farmer would reap a great benefit in the increased price of his raw wool. This expectation has not been realized simply because the foreign wools are needed by our manufacturers for the production of certain goods they have to pay more for an indispensable raw material, consequently their production is limited; they are unable to meet the foreign market, and the dearness of clothing restricts domestic consumption, so that the tariff on wool has been unfavorable both to the American wool grower and to the American wool manufacturer.

To prove this Mr Springer submitted the average prices of American washed clothing fleece wool from 1824 to 1881 as reported by Manger & Avery New York city. We quote the table from 1850

Year	Price	Year	Price
1850	38¾	1866	63
1851	41½	1867	50¾
1852	38¾	1868	46
1853	53¾	1869	49
1854	43	1870	46¾
1855	37¾	1871	55
1856	45	1872	70¾
1857	46½	1873	55¾
1858	36¾	1874	54¾
1859	47	1875	51¾
1860	47¾	1876	44
1861	38¾	1877	42¾
1862	50½	1878	40¾
1863	77¾	1879	37¾
1864	87½	1880	46
1865	82	1881	40

For 15 years before the tariff of 1867 the average price of American wool was 52 8 cents per pound; for the 15 years after 48 6 cents. Judge Kelley in his reply to Mr Springer claimed to be able by a different arrangement of periods to extract a protective argument from the same figures, that is for 10 years before the war the price was 43 4; from 1863 to 1866 it was 79 8 and from 1872 to 1881, it was 48¾. Neither Mr Springer nor Mr. Kelley took note of the fact that from 1860 to 1881 the price was in gold and from 1861 to 1879 in depreciated currency. The premium on gold was not less than an average of 12 per cent for Kelley's third period which would reduce his 48¾ cents to about 43 cents. There has been no increase therefore in the price of American wool consequent upon the tariff of 1867.

But it might be claimed that if the price is not higher there is at least more of it raised. Mr Springer gives the figures of the census upon wool to show that the eastern states have lost. With the help of his figures and of the census of 1870 we are able to print the following comparison of the number of the sheep in the country in 1870 and 1880 and of the wool clip, which is in each case for the year previous, 1869 and 1879

	1870	1880
Sheep in the United States	28 477 951	35 191,656
Pounds of wool	100 102 000	155 681,334
Sheep in Maine	434,683	565,918
Clip in Maine	1 774 000	2,776 000
Sheep in Vermont	580,347	439 8 0
Clip in Vermont	3 102,000	2,555,000
Sheep in six states (O , Mich, Pa , N Y , Ind Wis , Ia)	15 896,161	14 613,403

Mr Springer claims that in February, 1867, these same six states had nearly 30,000,000 sheep; that in February 1869 their number had declined to 26,281,000, so immediately fatal was the effect of the tariff. He does not give the authority for these latter figures, but they are probably from the tax returns of those states. The figures in the above table, so far as they are from the census of 1880 are from a letter from Superintendent Seaton and we believe have not been published before. There should be added to the 35,191,000 sheep given in the table (which were all enumerated on farms) about [illegible],000,000 sheep on ranches, making 42,391,000 as the total ovine population of the country.

Of course it may justly be said that the reason why the sheep industry of the older eastern and western states has declined is that it has fallen into competition with states unheard of as sheep states when the wool tariff was framed—California, Texas, Colorado. But that surely is no defense of the tariff on wool. It is its gravest impeachment that we having a country whose undeveloped agricultural resources surprise us every decade and enable the new empire states of to-morrow to overtake and overreach the empire states of yesterday should imagine that we could stimulate that development by a direct protective duty on raw materials. We might as well attempt to paint the lily, gild gold and lubricate lightning. The tariff on wool has not benefited the wool grower and has detracted just so much from the protection of the woolen manufacturer.

But the protection of the woolen manufacturer has been nearly if not quite as futile as that of the wool grower. The wool tariff altogether has been a delusion and a humbug. The raising of sheep has increased in the remote and new states just where it would have increased if no protective duty had been laid, the price of wool to the farmer has not been raised, the manufacture has been hampered by the increased cost of those foreign wools which he requires to compose certain products. We have to-day just about the same number of sheep as we had in 1867 notwithstanding the immense increase in the area devoted to agriculture in the number of farms and in the agricultural population.

For the year ending last June we exported less than half a million dollars worth of woolen goods. We imported woolen goods to the value of $4[illegible],000,000 on which $[illegible],000,000 was paid in customs duties or at the rate of over 60 per cent, 2 per cent higher than is paid on the manufactures of silk. How long are people going to stand such extortionate taxation on the plainest necessities of life—carpets, blankets and clothing?

A HAPPY YOUNG GENTLEMEN

Mr E H Rhoads residing at No 214 W Ninth street Wilmington Del says he knows more about the law of contrast than he did last winter. He did not then know what inflammatory rheumatism was. He has since been thoroughly initiated into all its mysteries and there is a very strong contrast between the feelings of a man when he is dosed with rheumatism and the enjoying immunity from it. During the Christmas holidays he was aroused from his sleep about [illegible] o'clock in the morning by a terrible pain in his right hand and wrist. He felt as if his arm weighed a ton and had been crushed by an elephant. He never did have anything to hurt him so badly in his life. He did not sleep any more that night for the pain grew rapidly worse until 8 o'clock when he applied St Jacobs Oil. His hand had grown so stiff by the time the first application was made that he could not move a finger and even St Jacobs Oil could not induce the disease to lose its grip until it had been used two days. At the end of that time however the famous old pain annihilator drove out the last vestige of pain and he was all right again and ready to eat, sleep and enjoy himself like other men. He has not had any sign of it since and does not care to make its acquaintance.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 27, 1882.

POLITICS IN CALIFORNIA.

Gen. George Stoneman, who has been nominated by the democratic convention of California for governor of that state, is one of the generals of the civil war who had large pretensions which were not supported by their military achievements, and who in consequence drifted out of the army and set up as soured democratic politicians. California became an asylum for several of these gentlemen whose military reputations shone with no remarkable lustre. Chief among them were Gen. Rosecrans and Gen. Stoneman. Both have fossilized into Bourbon politicians of the most pronounced type, descending from one level to another, until at last, by hanging on to the queue of the Chinaman with vigorous pretension, and by other arts, they have been carried to the leadership of their party in California. This is the sequel of the defeat of Rosecrans at Chickamauga and the capture of Stoneman and his command by an inferior force of confederates in Georgia.

It appears from the platform that the Chinese question is the chief reliance of the democratic managers for campaign material. But this question is as nearly obsolete as the resolutions of '98. The common sense of the country accepts the recent act of congress as a settlement of it for the next ten years, in so far as it can be settled by legislation. Ten years is a long period. At the end of it the country will be ready to take such other measures as circumstances may require. The demand put forth in their platform by the democrats of California that all the Chinese now in the country shall be expelled, is a demagogical absurdity. It could get no countenance in congress, even if the democratic party were supreme in power there.

Gen. Stoneman is a resident of Los Angeles, where he has an orange grove and a vineyard. For three years he has been a member of the railroad commission of the state. Looking to political advancement he has been using this position with as much adroitness as he could command to cultivate the granger and to keep his mind in a state of inflammation and eruption against the railroads. He was a supporter of the new constitution, and hopes to be elected on his promises to enforce that instrument with vigor against the undertakings of capitalists and the business enterprise of the state. But while this policy will gain votes for him on the one hand, it will cost him votes on the other. Sand-lot philosophy has pretty well run its course in California. There is no effervescence of the commune like that which prevailed when the Kearney code was adopted as the fundamental law. Men are finding out that no bread, nor even beer, is to be had by cobbling constitutions or tinkering the laws. Gen. Stoneman is a politician of an era out of which California is passing. Two years ago, or even one year ago, he could have been elected easily. But it is extremely doubtful whether he can be elected now.

In the case of Gen. Rosecrans, who is nominated for re-election to congress from the San Francisco district, the same remarks will apply. He is a soured, complaining and useless old man, as full of querulous egotism as wanting in actual capacity. His election two years ago was a product of the sand-lot ferment and of the Morey letter forgery. It is likely to fare badly with him without these auxiliaries now.

A SERIOUS ABUSE.

One of the notorious abuses which has quietly received the sanction of congress, with scarcely a protest, is the practice of paying the expenses of contesting seats in that body. Each representative who obtains a certificate, although it may be by evident fraud, draws his salary regularly; and when the rightful claimant obtains his seat, he too is paid from the date of election, and the whole people are made to pay a bonus to the man who is guilty of a grave offense against themselves and their rights. Enormous bills are also made out to cover the expense of summoning witnesses and conducting a contest, so that it is not remarkable that the aggregate amount of claims before the house on account of the contested seats is now $65,000. The system now followed is admirably calculated to swindle the people and encourage dishonesty. That contests are often trumped up without a shadow of foundation, it is unnecessary to tell the people of Oregon, who so recently have been amused by the pretenses of Mr. McDowell. And in general, it is probably true that the ill-advised and indefensible liberality of congress towards every man who puts in a claim for a seat, has done so much to increase the number of contests, one of the worst features of present politics, as the hope of obtaining a seat by the assistance of a partisan majority. There is neither right nor reason in rewarding a man for making a false claim to represent the people who have repudiated him at the polls. It is stealing from the tax-payer to give to the political shyster. Or even if the contestant believe himself to be in the right, he has no more reason to shift the consequences of a mistake upon the government than has the merchant or stock jobber. Whenever notice of contest is given, neither of the claimants should receive one dollar, either in the way of salary or expenses, until the question has been finally settled by a vote of the house. Then the member declared entitled to the seat should be given a moderate allowance for the necessary expenses of the contest, but not a cent should be bestowed upon the defeated party. By the final decision of the house itself, he has laid claim to the office of a representative without a title from the people; an action which, if done with full knowledge, is a grave crime against good government, and, if only the result of an erroneous conviction, is a mistake so serious that the pecuniary loss attaching to it should be esteemed but a small penalty. It is an outrage unbearable that after a man has stolen his way into congress by the basest means, the people should be called on to pay tribute to his success in intimidation and fraud, even after his title has been set aside. That no action should be taken on any claim whatever after the end of the session in which it originated, goes without saying. Otherwise the country may soon find itself paying full salaries to the heirs of men who were defeated fifty years ago. Congress has always been lax with regard to voting money to its own members, or any who pretended to be such, and needs a sharp reminder from the people. Every time it pays the salary or expenses of a man whom its own decision declares to have been not elected, it not only pilfers from the people, but it stultifies itself.

SHOULD BE STOPPED.

Operations of fishermen at the mouth of the Columbia are seriously damaging the ship channel. Their nets, dragging over the shoals, carry sands into the channel, not only filling it up but affecting the force and direction of the currents. This damage is the more annoying because it could be avoided without loss to anybody. If all the fishermen would agree not to drift below the inner point of Sand Island, they would catch just as many fish as now, and would avoid the dangers of the bar, which many of their comrades have passed never to return. But so long as the matter is left with the fishermen, they will continue to venture, unmindful alike of personal risk and of damage to the channel. Our legislature, and the legislature of Washington territory, should pass a law preventing fishing below specified points—say Smith's Point on the one side and Tansey Point on the other. It would be necessary for congress to ratify the territorial law, but this would be an easy matter. Oregon should take the lead, and at the coming session of the legislature. This is not a matter affecting Clatsop county or Portland alone, but the whole region which ships its products through the Columbia river. It is one of the serious questions affecting our commerce. By prompt action we should show congress that so far as possible we help ourselves.

A New York correspondent states that in the more common streets of the metropolis land is worth from $250,000 to $350,000 an acre. In the best part of Broadway the value is increased to $2,000,000 per acre; but in the vicinity of Wall street its value is immensely increased, because this locality is the money heart of America. The land on which the Drexel building stands cost the present owners at the rate of $14,000,000 per acre. It occupies the corner of Wall and Broad streets which may be considered the most valuable corner of this continent; and yet in 1850 this very place was occupied as a hat store. The corresponding value of property has been illustrated by the recent sale of the corner of Broad street and Exchange place, which was at the rate of $15,000,000 per acre. Hence the Drexel lot was none too dear. In fact, these dazzling figures are justified by the immensity of the transactions which occur daily. Almost all the railroads on the continent, except New England, are managed within 300 feet of this spot, and the general pressure of our immense financial system gives it a value which a few years ago could not have been dreamed of.

McCraken's dock fell with a crash yesterday and let a valuable freight into the water. This is the third similar accident within a few years. First the O. S. S. dock—now the O. R. & N.—fell because its supports had been carelessly removed. Next Pacific dock—the one destroyed by fire Saturday—tumbled, its fall resulting from faulty construction. The city government, which grants permits for the building of these docks, should regulate their construction and limit their holdings. They should be measured and tested by a commission or some competent person, just as ships are inspected and rated. Storers ought to be protected.

Rhode Island has 225 inhabitants to the square mile. The next state in density of population is Massachusetts, with 221 to the square mile. New Jersey is next with 152. Connecticut follows with 129 and New York with 107. Pennsylvania and Maryland have each 95, Ohio 78, and Illinois and Indiana each 55. Kentucky has 41, Iowa 30, Florida 5 California 5½ and Oregon less than 2.

Somebody is writing at great length in an Olympia paper against the Chinese, alleging as an objection "the absence of ideality in the Chinese intellect." This is a valid argument, though a little metaphysical and obscure. It is, however, only a nice way of setting forth the presence of grossness in the habits of the Chinese, and is doubtless intended chiefly for fastidious readers.

It is now shown that Mr. Tilden distinctly and expressly approved the plan for the electoral commission. But its decision went against him, and he has been posing as the great victim of "fraud" ever since.

Guiteau is resolved so long as he lives not to let Arthur forget that he made him president. And Guit. now has just three days left in which to contemplate the grandeur of the administration he made.

The true meaning of Michael Davitt's mission to this country and new Irish programme will doubtless appear in a few days. It will be plain enough when he starts another "fund."

In presenting our Segars to the public, we direct attention to the following facts:

The reputation attained by our firm for our brands, in this and foreign countries, is superior to that of any other manufacturers in the United States. This has been secured after an experience of nearly 20 years in the manufacturing of Segars and manipulation of Tobaccos, and we assure the public that no pains will be spared to maintain this hard-earned reputation.

Our Segars are all MADE IN OUR OWN FACTORIES and under our own immediate supervision. WE MAKE NO SEGARS IN TENEMENT HOUSES. We shall always use the best material the market affords. Our Segars will always be free from adulterations of any kind, and under OUR BRANDS the smoker may rely upon honest and acceptable goods.

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 27, 1882.

CITY.

DESPONDENCY LEADING TO DEATH.—About seven o'clock last evening a young man was seen to walk down Madison street to the river front and out on the open dock, or what is left of it, a few loose planks on the frame. He walked listlessly along until he reached the water's edge, when he suddenly sank from view. Mr. Alex Hunter saw him as fell into the water and rushed up to Jefferson street to get a boat, all he could do, as he could not swim. Several other men saw the accident from the wharves a block below and started to his assistance. Before any of them reached him, however, and before Mr. Hunter could return with the boat, he had gone down for the last time and only a few bubbles rising to the surface remained to mark the spot where a human life had gone out. His hat was floating on the water and was picked up. It was a stylish derby and evidently belonged to a person of taste in dress. Word of the accident was sent at once to Coroner Garnold, who soon arrived with ropes and grappling irons and three boats were pressed into service to find the body. After several hours had passed in unavailing efforts, the search was postponed until morning. The place where the man sank is filled with sunken timbers and piles, and it will be very hard to recover the body, if it can be done at all, during the high water. No one who saw the man just before he fell into the water or before he drowned could remember his features. During the evening it became rumored that a young man named McBride, of California, who had been stopping at the Narrow Gauge hotel, was missing and it is thought he might be the drowned man. The hat picked up corresponded to the one he wore and no trace of his whereabouts could be discovered. He was about 28 years of age and has been very unfortunate in obtaining no work since his arrival in the city. At times he has appeared somewhat despondent, but never talked or acted as though he contemplated suicide. There were several floating planks at the edge of the dock, and it is probable that having strolled down there in a despondent mood he stepped upon one of these and it sank under him.

DAMAGING RUNAWAY.—Mr. D. J. Ross, of Mount Tabor, left his team of horses attached to a wood wagon standing unhitched in front of Powell & News' livery stable in East Portland while he went inside. He had scarcely entered the door when he heard the horses start. Turning he rushed to stop them and succeeded in catching both horses by the bridles, but could not control them. They ran madly up the street, Mr. Ross still clinging to the bridles and hanging by his feet to the tongue and neck-yoke. At the corner of Fifth and L streets he lost his hold and fell between the horses, which, together with the wagon, passed over him without injury. The team then ran on up L street to Twelfth, then turning ran to J street, thence down to Fourth and turning again ran on the sidewalk, knocking down the awning posts and breaking the awning in front of H. Warren's store. Mr. Warren himself was standing in the doorway, and before he could recover from his surprise one of the signs swinging under the awning fell upon him, knocking him to the floor. He crawled out from under it, however, with only a few bruises and considerable fright. A second sign was driven through a plate glass window, the pump in front of the store was broken and the wagon suffered a general demoralization. The team was then secured. The damage to Mr. Warren's store will amount to quite a little sum.

MASKED BURGLAR SCARE.—Rumor that a gang of masked burglars were committing bold and desperate robberies in Watson's addition, created some excitement on the street yesterday. On running down the rumor, it was found that what burglaries had been committed were on a very small scale. The boarding house of Mrs. Lena Spaulding was entered by a ladder through an open window in the second story. The rooms of three of the gentlemen boarders were visited and the loose change in the pockets of their clothes was taken, amounting to less than $30 in all. An old silver-washed watch was also taken, which in the rumor had grown to a valuable gold hunting-case. No one saw the thieves in the house. Then it was said that three men wearing masks went into Charley Gryer's saloon on B street, and intimidating the barkeeper with a revolver, loaded themselves with choice wines and liquors and took their departure. The facts are that three men shook the saloon door in the night after it was closed and aroused Cap. Saul who sleeps at a livery stable near by. He told them there was no one there and they had better go away, which they did soon after. One of them held a handkerchief to his face as if he did not wish to be recognized, and that was all there was to the masked burglars.

FATAL FIT.—The name of Thomas Geary was placed upon the books of the police station last evening for the last time. Captain Belcher found him stretched out upon the sidewalk in front of Wallace's drug store, on First street, and thought it would be the same old complaint. But when he picked him up, the ashy pallor of his face, the tense-ly strung nerves, and the froth upon his lips, showed plainly that a strong fit was upon him. He was taken to the station, where he recovered consciousness enough to say that he was on his way to Father Fierens to get a permit to go to the sister's hospital. Captain Gritzmacher informed Father Fierens, who sent instructions that Geary be sent to the hospital at his expense. A hack was called, the sisters notified by telephone, and Geary sent out, accompanied by officer Wing. On the way he gasped suddenly a few times and then became quiet. Wing could not hear him breathing, and leaning forward, found that he was dead. The hack was turned about, and the body of Geary deposited at Coroner Garnold's. An inquest will probably be held to-day.

SCRAPING THE BAR.—Results thus far in the work of scraping through the middle sands of the Columbia river, though not so effective as the engineers could make it if they had the proper appliances, give indications that the hard crust is breaking and that nature is forcing a deeper channel. The tug Columbia, much more powerful than the Astoria, commenced yesterday working with the old drag, and the tug Escort, of Coos bay, has been engaged by telegraph to operate a newly constructed revolving harrow, designed by Capt. D. E. Buchanan. It is similar in shape to the cylinder of a threshing machine, but, of course, very much larger. With two good tugs and favorable weather, the engineers look for good results before the flood is over, despite the continued interference of numerous fishermen.

FROM EASTERN OREGON.—E. S. McComas, formerly register of the state land office at La Grande, who arrived here last night from eastern Oregon, informs us that he has recently made some extensive sales of lands in the vicinity of Baker City to Messrs. Stacy, Latimer and Denny of Seattle. "Breadtown" seems to capture all the Puget sound capitalists who go east of the Cascades to invest the profits on their salmon and hoop-poles. The Walla Walla Union talks a good deal about the baneful influences of those clam-digging speculators, but they are pretty shrewd men and do not invest their money in any place unless it has some elements of positive merit.

A GENEROUS VACATION.—The Fourth of July comes on Tuesday next. It is proposed by the banks, with a single exception, and many business houses, to remain closed on Monday, giving their employes, with Sunday and the Fourth, a half week's vacation. The opportunity to suspend business, without embarrassment to business, is one which seldom occurs, and is alike a gratification to employers and employed. It is thought that the movement will be general—at least, it will include most of the large establishments.

SPECIAL TRAINS NEXT WEEK.—The west side road will run a special train to Hillsboro every day next week, leaving Portland at 9 A. M., and returning leave the Fair ground at 6 P. M. Fare for the round trip will be $1, but tickets must be bought before entering the cars. It has been suggested by several lovers of horses that a train be run to Hillsboro next Sunday, so that those who are unable to get away during the week may see the flyers exercise. They think an excursion will pay.

GENERAL SMASH-UP.—Yesterday evening, about 6 o'clock, a team attached to the Cosmopolitan Transfer Company's wagon ran away and took a lively spin through First street, which was filled with teams. They smashed a wheel and spring of Mable's coach, did like damage to Smith's coach, started Charley Ziegler's team with a spring wagon, which smashed that vehicle, and were finally stopped near Front and Stark, themselves and wagon receiving no injury.

FALSE ALARMS.—The American Exchange hotel has taken fire so many times that every little blaze in that direction is laid to its account. A little pile of burning straw in that neighborhood last evening caused the latest report regarding it. The engines did not turn out this time. It is getting like the story of the shepherd boy who cried "wolf."

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the case of the U. S. vs. William Childers, charged with cutting timber on the public lands of the United States, the same being an unearned section of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

BEARING FRUIT.—Some hunters in the neighborhood of Dairy creek, Washington county, yesterday came across a Japanese pheasant hen and four chicks about three weeks old—some of the lot sent over by Judge Denny. They very much resemble Widgeon ducks.

NEW PATENTS.—Patents were recently granted to W. W. Martin, the jeweler of Salem, for a watch roller; to W. H. Parrish, of the same city, for a combined header and thresher, and to Thomas Heaton, of Vancouver, for a device for catching fish.

OMISSION.—The name of Andrew Brasen, primary grade, north school, was omitted from the roll of honor published Sunday. He was perfect in attendance, and that his name was not included in the list was no fault of THE OREGONIAN.

DRESS WELL.—Mr. W. C. Byrne, representing Nicoll, the tailor, whose reputation is world-wide, is in the city and is prepared to take orders for the latest styles in clothing. He will be at The Esmond for several days, where his samples can be seen and orders given. Suits, $20 up; pants, $5 up.

We called at Bond & Co.'s match factory yesterday and found the establishment in full working order. The stock made up is quite large, and orders come in constantly. The matches made by this firm are sold at less than the imported article. It is a home industry and is deserving of all patronage.

SATURATED SALT.

SIX HUNDRED TONS SLIDE INTO THE RIVER.

The Dock back of McCraken's Store Breaks Beneath the Weight—Loss Nearly $10,000—Salt with an Eventful History.

About three o'clock yesterday morning the dock between D and E streets, in the rear of McCraken & Co's stores, fell with a tremendous crash, resembling in sound an explosion of powder. The steamship Victoria lay alongside, and the noise, together with listing towards shore, created no little consternation among officers and crew, who supposed that the powder magazine had exploded. Few persons slept in the neighborhood, and the fact that an accident occurred was not generally known until long after business hours.

There was stored at the upper dock 517 tons of coarse rock salt in bulk, the property of John Molloy of San Francisco valued at $4200, and 50 tons of ground rock salt, belonging to the American Salt Co. of San Francisco, valued at $500. The salt had just been discharged from the Victoria. It was stored in the north part of the dock, the bulk of weight being nearer the river than the center, and it covered about half the dock surface. The front (facing the river) fell lower than the rear, and the entire lot of salt was pitched into the river, as clean as if it had been shoveled off. The roof, of course, fell with the dock, but kept its relative position, and did not get down to the floor. About seventy-five feet of the wharf, in length, and the same distance back, gave way. Captain J. C. Ainsworth is the owner, and his loss will be in the neighborhood of $5,000.

For the present the cause of the accident cannot be ascertained. The lower dock is submerged to a depth of seven or eight feet, and whether this portion is injured cannot be known until the water recedes. It is stated by those who know that the upright posts on the upper dock are immediately over those below, and the giving way is not traceable to the same circumstance which caused Pacific Dock to fall. Messrs. McCraken say that 1500 tons of grain has often been stored on the dock; hence they do not attribute the disaster to overloading. Perhaps the high water might have effected the strength of the structure, though just in what way no one is able to explain. There was weakness somewhere, and so soon as the facts can be learned THE OREGONIAN will make them public. No one was on the dock when the accident occurred, hence no loss of life or injury to person.

HISTORIC SALT.

The salt that went overboard came several thousand miles to meet an ignominious end in fresh water, without even a current to make it brisk. It was mined near Callao in 1863, was loaded on scows in the bay when the great tidal wave caused by the famous earthquake came, was thrown three miles into the interior along with two ships and other "ictas," and lay there until a year ago. It was then brought on mules' backs in iron drums back to the bay. The British bark Japan took 700 tons as ballast to San Francisco, where there was no demand for it, and it was finally sold at auction to Mr. Molloy. An analysis showed that the crude stuff contained 97 8-10 per cent. of pure salt, and further experiments showed that when it was ground it equaled the best Liverpool table salt. Mr. Molloy shipped the cargo here with the intention of grinding it, and had ordered a mill for that purpose from San Francisco.

It is suggested that the portion of the river containing the salt be "corralled;" steam introduced; a few ragged tents erected in the neighborhood; a hotel with small, inconvenient rooms, poor table and lazy servants established; some sand scattered about; two hundred mischievous children hired, and thus secure all the advantages of the sea side without paying steamboat fare. One of the cannery men says it will be a good speculation to build a cofferdam around the dock and pickle salmon therein.

WEDDING BELLS.

Last evening at 8:30 o'clock the marriage of Miss Ida M., only daughter of Capt. J. M. Gilman, to A. McKinnie, Esq., manager of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. for Oregon, Washington and Idaho, took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. T. L. Eliot performing the ceremony. The reception began at 9 o'clock, continuing until past 11. Congratulations were cordially given by those present and telegrams from San Francisco and elsewhere were quite numerous. A bountiful repast prepared by Sol. was discussed in all its details. The rooms were profusely decorated with the choicest flowers including the proverbial wedding bell. The bride was elegantly attired in a cream colored brocade satin trimmed with Spanish lace, and veil of illusion. The ornaments were diamonds. Those present were Hon. H. W. Corbett and wife, Hon. H. Failing, Hon. M. P. Deady, R. Weeks and wife, J. F. Caples, C. H. Muesdorffer and wife, Samuel Coulter and wife, Geo. T. Myers and wife, Wm. M. Gifford, Esq., Jas. Steel and wife, W. W. Spaulding and wife, Hon. Richard Williams and wife, L. W. Gilliland and wife, C. P. Church, Esq., E. F. Heroy, D. Dalgleish and wife, Jos. Strowbridge and wife, Miss Nevison, Thos. Robertson, Mrs. Dr. Thompson, Mrs. A. H. Morgan, G. W. Pittock, Mrs. Thos. Frazar, Mrs. Wm. Boone, Dr. C. H. Wheeler and wife, Hon. O. F. Paxton, Ira Powers, Esq., Judge Levi Anderson, Mrs. M. M. Nice, Rev. T. L. Eliot and wife, Wm. Powers and wife, Miss Cora Baker, W. K. Smith and wife, Miss Ella M. Smith, Miss C. McIntyre, Mrs. L. Ach, Miss Lena Ach, Miss Carrie Caples, Wm. Eliot. The presents were: Set of elegant and valuable diamonds from the bride's father; Italian bronzes framed, Hon. H. W. Corbett; same, with different design, W. M. Gifford; napkin rings, Miss C. McIntyre; silver berry dish (gold lined), Charles Sweeney and wife; carving knife, forks, tea and table spoons, Wm. Powers and wife; lace scarf, Miss Ella M. Smith; sugar spoon and butter knife, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Heroy; jewelry stand, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Church; cream pitcher and stand, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Gilliland; cream and cake plates of cut glass, Mrs. and Miss Ach; card receiver, Mrs. J. M. Gilman; napkin rings, Chas. M. Nab; volume of Tennyson's poems, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith; stand of flowers, J. R. Garnies; card stand, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Coulter; berry spoon, Mrs. B. Farmer; pair of blankets, D. Dalgleish; flower stand, a friend, Java birds in cage, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cofran; and last, and most highly prized, a silver set of six pieces, from the Oregon board of directors of the company which Mr. McKinnie represents. The honeymoon will be passed at Victoria and on the sound, the happy couple leaving on this morning's boat.

AMUSEMENTS.

Opening of the Season of Emotional Drama at New Market.

A fair sized audience greeted Miss Nellie Boyd at New Market last night on the occasion of her first appearance here. "Fanchon" is a trying role and requires more versatility than is possessed by most actresses who come to us as stars. Every theater-goer knows the play and any reference to it is unnecessary. Miss Boyd brought to the presentation of the role of "Fanchon" all the abandon, vivacity and sentiment that the character requires. If we may judge from seeing her in one play, we should say that Miss Boyd is a well schooled actress, sympathetic, painstaking, a trifle crude at times, but always graceful. Her chief charm is in a rich voice which at all times she uses well, and her resistance of the temptation to gush and bombastic scenes.

The support in the main, was good, very good. Mr. Emery as "Father Barbeaud," Miss Canavan as "Old Fadet" and Mr. Hart as "Didier," were capital, and the remainder were equal to requirements.

It was an error in the management to charge only 75 cents for reserved seats. Portlanders have been accustomed to paying $1 for much poorer performances, notably during the Lingard engagement, and if Miss Boyd is as clever in other roles as in "Fanchon," the theater will be crowded before the week ends, at regular prices of admission.

To-night "Forget-me-not," its second production in Portland, Miss Boyd as "Stephanie" and Mr. Emery as "Sir Horace Welby." The dialogue of this play is more brilliant than that of any other society drama ever written.

A jam has been created by the last flood at the mouth of the Skagit river that very nearly impedes navigation. Steamboat slough is closed, and the mouth of the main channel nearly so. A force of workmen are busily engaged endeavoring to clear the jam. It will cost several thousand dollars to clear the jams created by the last flood.

There are now upon the Skagit river about twenty logging camps, which are putting into the water from one million to one million and a half per month, and new camps are constantly being added as trade and settlement progresses up the river. There is an immense body of timber on this stream, much of which is still quite easy of access.

The logging camp of George W. Foster is situated on the Deschutes river about six miles from this place, and connected by rail with the Olympia and Chehalis valley road. Mr. Foster's contract with the railroad company is for hauling 40,000 feet daily from the 1st of May to the 31st of October, and 15,000 feet daily the remainder of the year. The regular haul must exceed this amount to make allowance for rainy days and accidental detention, and frequently it overruns from 5,000 to 10,000 feet. This average will give an annual product of nearly six million feet of logs, and affords constant employment to forty or forty-five laborers and a ready market for supplies for their subsistence and to meet the incidental wants of the camp. Teamsters receive from $50 to $60 per month, choppers $65 to $70, other able-bodied employees from $40 to $60, and boys $1 per day—board and lodging in all cases included.

The Sun Among the Stars.

To the Editor of the New York Sun—Sir: Does our sun belong to a constellation, and if so, to which?
NEW YORK, June 1. IGNORAMUS.

Not as seen from the earth. Viewed from some of the stars in the southern heavens, however, it would appear to be a star belonging to the constellation of the Great Bear. Looked at from another direction it would shine faintly in the neighborhood of the splendid Sirius, which is a sun many times larger than ours.

CAPITAL NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, June 26.

Hon. C. B. Watson, of Portland, is in this city.

W. H. Byars, of Roseburg, has been appointed notary public by Governor Thayer.

The firemen of Salem will probably contend for the prizes of the Astoria fire tournament, provided the prizes offered, if won by them, will justify the expense connected with the trip.

Miss Nellie Boyd's theatrical combination closed a very successful engagement at Reed's opera house in this city on Saturday evening last. I have no hesitancy in recommending the troupe to our metropolitan friends.

A rumor has been afloat in this city for several days of the death at some point in Southern California of Dr. J. D. Hoyt, well and favorably known in Salem, where his mother resides. After considerable telegraphic correspondence, a dispatch was received from friends of his yesterday at the point where he was stopping, that he was not only alive, but that himself and family had gone to the mountains on a pleasure trip.

A fire originated very mysteriously in a vacant building on State street, about one o'clock yesterday morning. The building was directly opposite the old Bennett house, the adjoining premises being occupied by Chinese tenants. It was owned by a Mr. Cross, and one adjoining, which was considerably damaged, by W. F. Thorne. The buildings were not worth very much, and were not insured. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, this being the third attempt at property burning by fire fiends within the past month. Steps are being taken to arrest certain suspected parties.

Her Chaucer, with a gay content
Hummed through the shining fields, scarce bent
By poet's foot, and, plucking, set
All lusty, sunny, dewy-wet,
A dandelion in his verse,
Like the first gold in childhood's purse.

At noon, when harvest colors die
On the pale azure of the sky,
And dreams through dozing grasses creep
Of winds that are themselves asleep,
Rapt Shelley found the airy ghost
Of that bright flower the spring loves most,
And ere one silvery ray was blown
From its full disk made it his own.

Now from the stubble poets glean
Scant flowers of thought; the Muse would wean
Her myriad nurslings, feeding them
On petals plucked from a dry stem.
For one small plumule still adrift,
The wind-blown dandelion's gift,
The field once blossomy we scour
Where the old poets plucked the flower.

BEAUTY RULES.

From "Lady Beauty," in London Society.

"Rule One—A woman's power in the world is measured by her power to please. Whatever she may wish to accomplish she will best manage it by pleasing. A woman's grand social aim should be to please."

"And let me tell you how that is to be done," Sophia said, putting her paper down for a moment. "A woman can please the eye by her appearance, her dress, her face and her figure. She can please the ear by studying the art of graceful elocution, not hard to any of us, for by nature we speak with finer articulation than you. She can please the mind by cultivating her own—so far, at least, as to make her a good listener; and as much further as she will she can please the fancy by ladies' wit, of which all of us have a share. She can please the heart by amiability. See here," she continued, growing graver, "you have the key of my system. Beauty of person is only one feature of true beauty. Run over these qualities. See how small a part personal beauty or the freshness of youth plays here. I want you to observe this; for my art would consist not in making women attractive who are openly pretty and young, but in showing them that youth and prettiness, though articles of beauty, are neither the only nor the indispensable articles."

"Rule Two—Modesty is the ground on which all a woman's charms appear to the best advantage. In manners, dress, conversation, remember always that modesty must not be forgotten."

"Hardly likely to be," I murmured. "Is it?"

"Understand me," answered Sophia briskly. "I mean modesty in a very extended sense. There is nowadays a tendency in women to rebel against old-fashioned modesty. The doctrine of liberty is spreading among us, for which I thank God," Sophia said (she was the oddest little mixture of tory and whig and radical ever compounded on this eccentric earth). "But the first effects of that doctrine on our minds are a little confusing. We are growing more independent and more individual. Some of us fancy that to be modest is to be old-fashioned, and of course we want the newest fashion in all things. I maintain," Sophia said, growing a little warm, as if she fancied I might argue back—"I maintain that a modest woman is the reply of my sex to a brave man—you can no more have a true woman without modesty than a true man without courage. But remember, I use the word modesty in a high sense."

"Just what I was going to ask," I said.

"Not prudery," she added. "Prudery is to modesty what brag is to bravery. Prudery is on the surface, modesty is in the soul. Rosalind in her boy's suit is delightfully modest, but not"—Sophia said with a twinkle of her eye—"not very prudish, is she?"

I assented, and thus made way for—

"Rule Three.—Always dress up to your age, or a little beyond it. Let your person be the youngest thing about you, not the oldest."

"Rule Four.—Remember that what women admire in themselves is seldom what men admire in them."

"In nine drawing-rooms out of ten," Sophia said, seeing me give a look of inquiry as she read this article, "Miranda or Cordelia, as social heroines, would be voted bores. Women would say, we utterly decline to accept these watery girls as typical of us; we want smartness and life. I don't really care much for Miranda or Cordelia myself. Now this seems to me to caution us against trusting too implicitly or too far our own notions about ourselves. Another source of misunderstanding comes from the novel writers. We are the novel readers, and the novelist is forced to write heroines to suit our taste. He does not want to offend us. Thus it comes about that even the male novelist is too often only depicting women's women, after all. And I believe scores of modern girls are seriously misled for this very reason. They believe they are finding out what men think of them, when in truth they are reading their own notions handed back to them under a pretty disguise.

"Rule Five.—Women's beauties are seldom men's beauties."

"Which," she remarked, "is another form of what I said just now, only here I speak of personal beauty. My observation is, that if ten men and ten women were to go into the same company, and each sex choose the prettiest woman there, as they thought, you would rarely find that they chose the same. If this be so, we ought not to trust ourselves even as to our faces without considering that the sex we are to please must in the end settle the question, and will settle the question in its own way."

"Rule Six—Gayety tempered by seriousness is the happiest manner in society."

"By which I mean," Sophia said, looking at me with knitted brows, as if she were about to explain some matter not altogether clear to herself, "that in all our gayety there ought to be a hint of self-recollection. Do you understand me?"

"Not quite," I said.

"This I know certainly," she replied: "the most agreeable women I have met with—and I think the most regarded—have been women of rank, who have been trained with a due regard for religion. Their worldly education had made them mindful of grace and liveliness; their religious education kept these qualities under a particular sort of control, which is perceptibly different from mere good breeding. It seems to me that vivacity and sprightliness are greatly enhanced by a vein of seriousness. Certainly no woman ought to be a mocker."

"Next," she continued, seeing I did not speak, "comes—

"Rule Seven.—Always speak low.

"I wonder why I put that down. It is so obvious. In support of it I need only quote your Shakespeare, who calls it 'an excellent thing in woman.'"

"Rule Eight.—A plain woman can never be pretty. She can always be fascinating if she takes pains."

"I well remember," Sophia said after reading this to me, rather questionable assertion, "a man who was a great admirer of our sex telling me that one of the most fascinating women he had ever known was not only not pretty, but as to her face decidedly plain—ugly, only the word is rude. I asked my friend, 'How, then, did she fascinate?' I well remember his reply. 'Her figure,' said he, 'was neat, her dressing was faultless, her every movement was graceful, her conversation was clever and animated, and she always tried to please. It was not I alone who called her fascinating; she was one of the most acceptable women in society I ever knew. She married brilliantly, and her husband, a barrister in large practice, was devoted to her—more than if she had been a queen of beauties.'"

"Now here," Sophia continued, resuming her own discourse, "here was a woman who, excepting a fairly neat figure, had not a single natural gift of appearance. Is not this worth our thinking about—those of us women who care to please and are not beauties born?"

"Rule Nine.—Every year a woman lives the more pains she should take with her dress."

"The dress of us elderly dames," Sophia said, laughing, "ought to be more of a science than it is. How often one hears a woman of fifty say 'Oh, my dressing days are past!' When," adds Sophia, "if she thought about it, they have only well begun. At least, the time has come when dress is more to her than ever. Remember, from forty to sixty-five is a quarter of a century—the third of a long life. It is a period through which the majority of grown-up people pass. And yet how little pains women take—how little thought beforehand—to be charming then."

"And now," she went on, seeing I did not speak, "here comes my last rule—as yet."

"Rule Ten.—In all things let a woman ask what will please the men of sense before she asks what will please the men of fashion."

"I by no means intend," she added, "that a woman is not to have regard to the opinion of men of fashion, only she should not give it the first place. She will carry the men of fashion sooner by methods that please the men of sense than men of sense by methods that please men of fashion. And besides, listen to the men of fashion. They always praise a woman for things which begin to perish at twenty-five. Even the old men of seventy will talk of 'a fine girl—deucedly fine figure!'" (I wish I could give an idea of Sophia's slightly wicked mimicry at this passage.) "And they will call a woman rather on the decline, when, if she is on the decline, where and what are they? You see if a woman lives for the commendation of men of fashion she will, if pretty, piquant, or what not, have a reign of ten years. But if she remembers that she has charms of mind and character and taste, as well as charms of figure and complexion, the men of sense will follow her for half a century; and in the long run the men of fashion will be led by the men of sense."

"And there," Sophia cried merrily, throwing the paper down on the rug beside her—"these are my rules for reforming our little world of women!"

SHARP PRACTICE.

There is a good deal of talk about the smartness of Yankees, but on the other side of the water they manage to turn out some very shrewd rascals. How is this for a case of sharp practice? "A certain Hungarian countess, well known for her riches and beauty, (the same spirited lady who last year seconded her brother in a duel) graced with her presence the performance at the Areza, or summer theatre. On one of her fair fingers my lady wore two splendid diamond rings exactly like each other. During an entr' acte there presented himself in her box a big fellow in grotesque livery—six feet of the finest flunky imaginable. Quoth he, in the finest Hungarian, 'My mistress, Princess P., has sent me to beg of your ladyship the loan of one of your rings for five minutes. Her highness has observed them from her box opposite, and is very anxious to observe one more closely, as she wished to have one made after the same pattern.' Without an instant's hesitation the countess handed a ring to Jeames, who bowed with respectful dignity and retired. The performance over, the two great ladies met on the staircase, and the countess begged her friend to keep the ring at her convenience. 'What ring, my dear?' Denouement. Tableau. The powdered menial was no flunky at all, but a thief, and the ring was gone.

"The police were informed of the impudent trick. Justice seemed to have overtaken the culprit in a very few strides, for the next morning the countess, while still en robe de chambre received a letter informing her that the thief had been caught, and the ring found on his person. 'Only,' added the note, 'the man stoutly denies the charge, and declares the ring to be his own. To clear up all doubts, please come at once to the police station, or send the duplicate ring by bearer.' To draw the second ring from the finger and intrust it joyfully to the messenger—a fine fellow in full police uniform—together with a handsome 'tip' for the glorious news, was the work of a moment. Only when the lady an hour later betook herself radiant to the station house to recover her jewels, a slight mistake came to light. 'Well, my rings? I could not come myself the moment I got your letter.' 'What letter, madam?' Denouement! Tableau No. 2. The thief got them both."

IRONWORKERS' WAGES.

Statements of Employers Shown up—How Protection does not Protect Labor.

Chicago Tribune.

There seems to be considerable confusion, if not misrepresentation, on the subject of the rates of wages paid to men engaged in the iron and steel manufacture in this country. A Chicago employer, in an interview on Thursday, made this statement to a representative of the Tribune:

Just see the wages these men make. Here is the average amount received per day, taken from the last pay roll:

Plate mill roller	$12 50
Plate mill heater	7 95
Plate mill catcher	3 00
Puddlers	4 75
Puddlers' helper	2 40
Nailers, maximum	11 53
Nailers, minimum	4 50
Truck roller	10 00
Guide mill roller	12 50
Guide mill heater	7 10
Guide mill rougher	3 55
Guide mill heater's helper	2 10
Bar mill roller	8 00
Bar mill heater	5 98
Bar mill catcher	5 40
Bar mill heater's helper	2 00
Straightener	1 75

It is absolutely certain that we can give no advance on these wages; we do not want to be hard on our men, and we want them to get good wages, but we cannot go higher than these wages and run our mills.

It is quite possible that every word and figure given in this statement is literally true, and that the wages named are paid as stated; nevertheless, taken as a whole, it does not fairly represent the facts. That there may be one mechanic who is paid $12.50 a day does not fairly explain that there are 100 others who are paid less than $3 per day, and the character of the wages paid to the workmen is to be measured not by that paid to one man at the head of each branch of service, but by that which is paid to them as a whole. Mr. James M. Swank, Secretary of the American Iron and Steel Association, whose report of the iron and steel industry of the United States for the census will always be a monument to his intelligence, ability and thorough information, furnishes the best and most complete statement of the rates of wages generally and specifically paid to workmen in the iron and steel mills of the country. This report is complete in all its details, and we take from that report the following facts and figures. These figures are for the census year 1880. A ton represents 2000 pounds. It includes blast furnaces, rolling mills, steel works, forges and bloomeries. The whole number of establishments was 1005. The amount of capital invested was put down at $230,971,884. The total production of iron and steel was 7,265,140 tons, of which 3,781,021 were of pig-iron, and of Bessemer and open-hearth steel 985,208 tons.

The states producing iron and steel in 1880 in the order of their rank were: (1) Pennsylvania, 3,616,668 tons; (2) Ohio, 830,141 tons; (3) New York, 698,300 tons; (4) Illinois, 417,967 tons; (5) New Jersey, 240,660 tons. These are all the states producing over 200,000 tons. In 1870, Illinois stood No. 15 in rank among the iron-producing states. In the rank of counties producing iron and steel, Cook county, Illinois, ranks No. 5, being exceeded only by four of the counties in Pennsylvania. In the production of Bessemer steel ingots in 1880 Pennsylvania produced 56 per cent., Illinois 26 per cent., New York 9 per cent., and Ohio 8 per cent.

On the subject of labor and wages the report gives the following general particulars and details for the year 1880:

Total males above 16 years employed	133,203
Males under 16 years	7,709
Females	46
Total hands employed	140,978
Average number of hours per week	65
Average day's wages, paid skilled mechanics	$ 2 59
Average day's wages, ordinary laborer	1 24
Average year's wages for each hand	393 51
Average weekly wages of skilled mechanics	15 54
Average wages, ordinary laborer	7 44

Average hours of labor per day, 10 hours 53 minutes.

These wages were, however, much varied according to the nature of the work. We give the average daily wages paid in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois to the workmen of the several classes of work:

IN	PENN'A. Skilled labor.	PENN'A. Ordinary labor.	OHIO. Skilled labor.	OHIO. Ordinary labor.	ILLINOIS. Skilled labor.	ILLINOIS. Ordinary labor.
Blast furnaces	$1 64	$1 09	$1 84	$1 25	$2 17	$1 33
Iron roll'g mills	3 05	1 17	3 87	1 32	3 07	1 25
Bessemer, and open-hth steel	3 48	1 17	3 96	1 24	3 50	1 34
Crucible steel	3 16	1 34	3 50	1 60	3 50	1 60
Forges & blooms	2 48	1 11	.....	.....	.....	.....

We give these as the actual wages paid in 1880, and we understand these are the wages now paid and which the mechanics now on a strike demand shall be increased 10 to 15 per cent. The reader who will compare these figures of the actual wages paid in the several classes of iron and steel establishments throughout the country generally, and in the three great iron and steel producing states particularly, will see that the average wages paid fall far short of those which might be assumed from the mill owners' statements to be the ordinary wages paid to the workingmen in these establishments. The average wages paid to ordinary workmen does not equal $7 50 per week of sixty-five hours' labor. The average wages paid to skilled mechanics does not reach $16 per week of sixty-five hours' labor.

It should be borne in mind that the country is remorselessly taxed to pay these manufacturers a heavy bounty, upon the theory that the proceeds of this tax is divided among the mechanics and laborers in their employ. The sum paid for wages in this industry is less than 15 per cent. of the value of the product. When an addition of 10 per cent. be made to wages, it is equivalent to an addition of 10 per cent. to 19 per cent. of the cost of production, and not to the whole cost.

We do not propose to discuss the merits of the controversy between the employers and the employed in the iron and steel business. We simply give the figures as returned by Mr. Swank of the iron and steel business of the United States in 1880. That business is protected by a tax ranging from 45 to 90 per cent., levied especially for its business, and at this very time there is a bill pending in congress to increase this protective tax from 20 to 30 per cent. The information we give herein will be of interest to the public. We may add that the iron and steel business of 1881 was much greater than in 1880.

Guiteau's Responsibility.

Springfield Republican.

The machinery of the law has moved slowly in Guiteau's case, as it generally does in matters of great popular interest, but it has moved steadily; there has never been any real doubt as to what the end would be, and that end is not being postponed by lawyers. The question of Guiteau's sanity, which is still agitating some of the doctors, was gone into upon his trial as thoroughly as could be. Dr. Worcester, of Salem, Dr. Shaw, of Middletown, Ct., Dr. McLane Hamilton, Dr. Fordyce Barker, of New York, Dr. McDonald, of the Ward's island asylum, and others, all familiar with insanity, testified that they had observed him and believed that he was sane upon the 2d of July, when he fired the fatal shot. No murderer ever had his sanity more thoroughly explored and deliberately passed upon by a jury. Murders are generally unreasonable acts, but Guiteau's motive was clear and his moral responsibility unquestioned. His perspective was distorted, that is, his view of the probable results of his act was absurdly mistaken, but this is almost always the case with murderers of undoubted sanity, and does not relieve in the slightest degree their full responsibility for their acts.

Haunted Me.

A workingman says: "Debt, poverty and suffering haunted me for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did no good. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have been sick a day since; and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost."—Christian Advocate.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

John Scott Russell, the engineer who built that great big, useless floating mass called the Great Eastern, is dead.

Senator Anthony has been in the senate continuously since 1859—23 years—and has just been re-elected for a fifth term. The people of Rhode Island have a notion that a good man in the senate is a good man to keep there.

In Russia only one liquor shop is allowed in a village, and where there are two or three villages in one neighborhood one shop must do for all. Perhaps the Russian plank of the democratic platform will condemn this as worse than Jewish persecution.

Dr. Edward A. Freeman begins his remarks on American life under the heading "Alter Orbis," in the June Contemporary Review. He added nothing to his reputation by what he said or did while in this country and his criticisms on America will be awaited with much interest.

The census of 1880 will be a costly piece of work, but the money will not be begrudged by the country, as it has been well done. The data thus far given out are the most complete of the kind ever presented, and are almost invaluable to the statistician and all those called upon to consider the condition of the country.

Two of the four horses which the emperor of Russia has just given to the German emperor, are the identical ones that drew the late czar's carriage when he was assassinated. Probably the German emperor won't ride after those horses much. There's something about them not exactly pleasantly suggestive to a sovereign.

The Wisconsin prohibitory association has been regularly organized as a corporation, with a capital stock of $100,000. The object of the society is to procure the adoption and enforcement of a prohibitory amendment, but it does not appear what was gained by the formal organization, nor who is to pay the money in and what is to be done with it.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN,

THE

Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast in the Treatment of

ALL CHRONIC & DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease. He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Vitality. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored. Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

Office—132 and 34 Third st., opposite Masonic Hall. Office Hours—From 10 to 12 A.M., 2 to 5 and 7 to 8 P.M. All letters of professional business must be addressed to DR. PAUL M. BRENAN & CO., Portland, Oregon.
